

SOCIAL DISTANCING

Everyone is still talking about the Coronavirus.

Doctors are doing a good job helping the people who have gotten sick.
Doctors are also doing a good job looking for ways to beat the virus.

And we are all working hard to be safe, feel safe and stay healthy.

One thing I can do to stay healthy and safe is called Social Distancing.

Social Distancing means I may not be able to be close to other people all the time.

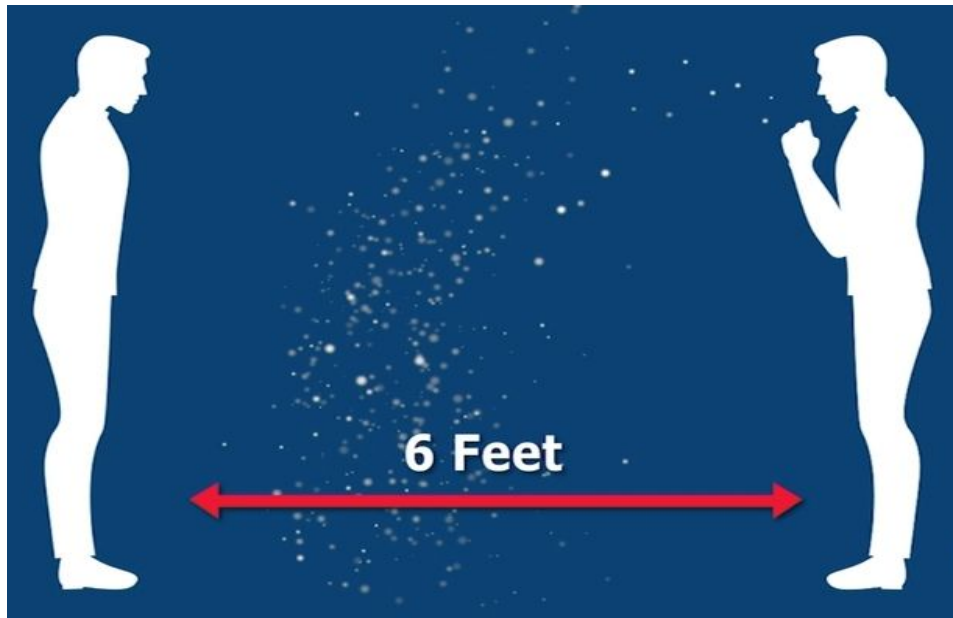

Social Distancing means that not all students will be in school at the same time.

Social Distancing means that big places that usually have lots of people may still be closed.

Social Distancing is a way to stay far enough away so our breath cannot reach another person and their breath cannot reach us. That keeps us all safe from the coronavirus.

The doctors say that we should try and stay 6 feet apart. But I'm not sure how far 6 feet is?

Well, here are some ways I can remember how far I should try and stay apart from people in my school and my community.

6 feet is how long 2 big dogs are when they stand in a line.

6 feet ishow tall a door is.

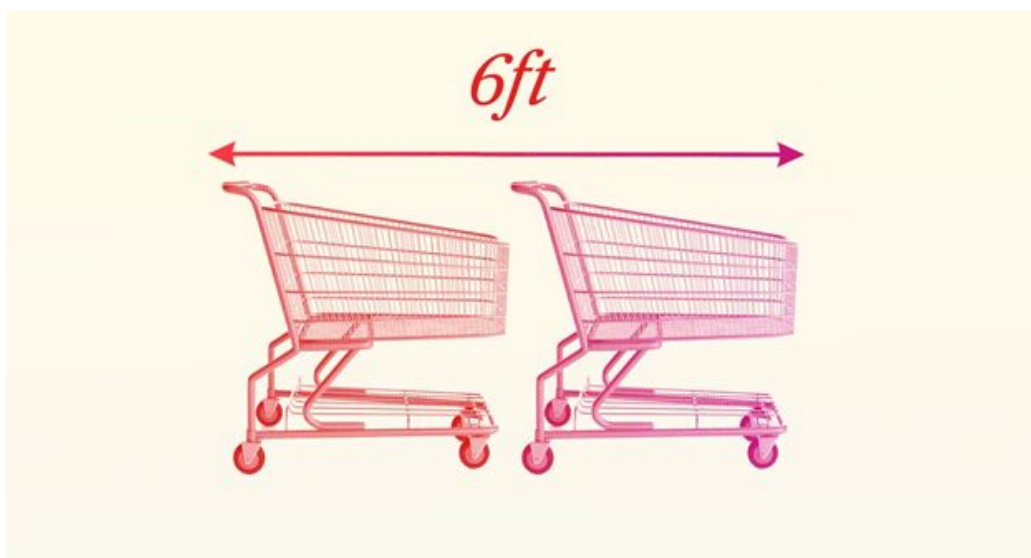

6 feet ishow long my couch at home is.

6 feet ishow long my bed is.

6 feet ishow long 2 shopping carts are when they are in a line.

6 feet ishow long 2 cats are all stretched out.

6 feet is..... how wide most cars are.

Now I know how far 6 feet is and how far I should try and stand from people especially if I am not wearing a face covering.

Now I know one more way to keep myself and other people safe from the Coronavirus.

Hurray for me!
